

Pathology Grand Rounds

“Novel Diseases of the Brain Caused by Polyomavirus JC: Universal Lessons from an Accidental Pathogen.”

Purpose/Vision: See the future of medicine and go there today.

Target Audience: Physicians, fellows, residents, medical students, physician assistants, nurses, and all other health care personnel.

Dates and Locations: January 30, 2017 from 11 am to 12 pm in the College of Medicine East Tower (CMET) room 268.

For Information Contact: uicpathologygrandrounds@gmail.com.

Speaker:

Igor J. Koralnik, MD

The Jean Schweppe Armour Professor of Neurology
Chairperson, Department of Neurological Sciences, Rush Medical College
Director, Neuroimmunology Fellowship Program
Head, Section of Neuroinfectious Diseases

After completion of the activity, participants should be able to:

1. Integrate cutting edge research techniques and ideas based on varied clinicopathologic topics into current clinical practice and translational research